

AUSTRIA FORMALLY MAKES DECLARATION OF WAR

Engagement Between Austrian and Servian Troops Along the Danube Reported. Servian Vessel Siezed.

PEACE OVERTURES DECLINED

Meanwhile All of Europe is Mobilizing Its Armed, Naval and Land Forces Ready To Meet Any Emergency That May Arise—Russia's Attitude Waited With Interest.

BULLETIN.
Vienna, July 28.—Official notification of the declaration of war was sent to all today by the Austro-Hungarian government.

BULLETIN.
London, July 28.—Announcement of the declaration of war by Austria-Hungary on Serbia came today almost immediately after Germany and Austria had notified Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, of their refusal to join in a mediation conference. It is assumed here that the efforts of the European nations will now be directed toward localizing the area of hostilities.

BULLETIN.
London, July 28.—A newspaper dispatch from Berlin on the Danube, says the Servian parliament, after a prolonged debate, is reported to have accepted all the demands made by Austria-Hungary.

BULLETIN.
Nis, Servia, July 28.—The Servian steamers Deligrad and Morava were seized today at Orsova on the Danube by Austrians. The Servian colors were hoisted down and the Austrian flag was hoisted. The passengers were detained.

BULLETIN.
Paris, July 28.—The Austrian ambassador to France today said it was probable that active hostilities between Austria-Hungary and Servia began this morning. But until eleven o'clock he had not received any telegram to that effect from Vienna.

BULLETIN.
Glasgow, July 28.—Three Italian warships visiting the Clyde were ordered today to return immediately to Italy.

BULLETIN.
Vienna, July 28.—The Militarische-Rundschau reports active movements of 200 Servian and Montenegrin troops, which are in close touch at Pribaj near the frontier of Bosnia.

OFFICIAL TEXT.
Vienna, July 28.—The declaration of war was published here late this afternoon. The text follows:
"The royal government of Servia, not having replied in a satisfactory manner to the note remitted to it by the Austro-Hungarian minister in Belgrade on July 22, 1914, the imperial and royal government finds itself compelled to proceed itself to safeguard its rights and interests and to have recourse for this purpose to force of arms."
"Austria-Hungary considers itself, therefore from this moment in a state of war with Servia." (Signed) COUNT BERCHTHOLD.

Minister of Foreign Affairs of Austria-Hungary.
London, July 28.—The refusal by Germany and Austria-Hungary to participate in this mediation conference on the Austro-Servian conflict, the formal declaration of war by Austria-Hungary on Serbia, and the persistent downward trend of the European stock markets, were the outstanding developments of the European situation today.

Preparations for war proceeded on all sides. Even England's fleet was placed today around all the magazines and oil depots.

Germany's Attitude.
Germany's definite decision against participation in the ambassadorial conference proposed by Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, regarded here as paramount to a declaration of Germany's determination that Austria-Hungary shall have an entirely free hand in chastising Servia, unless the Balkan kingdom accedes in full to the demand of the dual monarchy.

According to advices received here, Germany's refusal was couched in terms of sympathy with Sir Edward Grey's object, but contended that the suggested conference would place Austria-Hungary in the invidious position of appearing like the Balkan states before a European tribunal to explain her action and, therefore, likely to increase rather than decrease the difficulties of the situation.

Russia's Position.
Apparently authentic reports current here assert that Russia has been given positive assurances that Austria-Hungary has no intention of annexing Servian territory. If true, this might, it is thought, help the efforts to localize the war.

The official confirmation of the rupture of hostilities between Austria and Servia is as yet unauthorized, but a number of rumors have been published, including one of the seizure of Servian ships carrying contrabands by an Austrian patrol on the Danube.

To Localize War.
Instead of a conference Germany, however, is prepared to welcome any further suggestions to localize the conflict as far as consistent to her duty to her ally.

The public in the German capital was very nervous today and alarming rumors continue to circulate. The run on the savings banks in which the poorer classes deposit their money was resumed this morning. As early as five o'clock there were long lines of depositors outside the banks, and the people insisted on having their money, regardless of the reassuring statements by officials.

Unofficial Word.
Washington, D. C., July 28.—A statement was made after the Russian ministry had issued an official declaration that Russia was greatly disturbed and could not remain indifferent in the crisis that had arisen between Servia and Austria-Hungary. The order for the complete mobilization of the Russian army was confirmed.

Refusals Received.
In the meantime Sir Edward Grey took the initiative of requesting the European powers to permit their ambassadors in London to confer with a view of a peaceful settlement of a controversy. Italy and France at once consented to join their efforts to those of Great Britain, but Germany and Austria refused, Germany supporting her ally in the contention that it would be undignified for a large power like Austria to appear before a tribunal of European powers on the same status as the little Balkan nation.

Mobilize Troops.
Austria-Hungary in the interval had proceeded rapidly with the mobilization of her great army. The entire railroad system was utilized for the movement of troop trains. The telegraph system was virtually monopolized for government business, and a strict censorship was imposed.

Servia also had mobilized her forces and had withdrawn the garrison of Belgrade, the capital, to the interior, as the chief of Servia occupied a position too vulnerable to be held.

Germany is Unfavorable.
Berlin, July 28.—The German government today returned an unfavorable reply to the British proposal for a conference of the ambassadors in London of the European powers in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of the Austro-Servian difficulties. In its communication Germany declares that it considers the suggestion of Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, well meant and good in principle, but not feasible in practice, and impossible to carry out.

It says that it cannot be expected that a great power having a dispute with a smaller neighbor will submit the matter to a decision of a European tribunal. Far less can it be hoped that two great powers will submit to be summoned in the role of accused before such a tribunal.

Germany makes the counter suggestion that negotiations for peace be conducted between the cabinet instead of a conference.

The German admiralty ordered the concentration of the German fleet in home waters.

Austria Also Refuses.
Vienna, July 28.—It was semi-officially announced today that Austria-Hungary had decided to refuse Sir

Edward Grey's proposal of an ambassadorial conference in London.

The imperial Austro-Hungarian foreign office, located today, that it should Servia, too, comply with the demand contained in the Austrian note, the government of the dual monarchy will not be satisfied. Officials at the ministry stated that Servia's reply had made it impossible for Austria-Hungary to adhere to her former standpoint and compliance by Servia with the demand made on her would be longer in sense a course of action of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

Servians Leave Capital.
Belgrade, Servia, July 28.—By indirect route, many Servian families have left the capital for the country districts in spite of the advice of the authorities, while there has been a large exodus of Austrians and Hungarians from Belgrade and other parts of Servia.

Perfect order prevailed in the capital, the police duties having been undertaken by a corps of volunteers composed of students.

Military preparations are being carried out with feverish activity. The troops have concentrated in fortified positions in the neighborhood of Kragujevac, but in the event of necessity they will be transferred to Krushevac, ninety miles southeast of Belgrade.

Moving Austrian Troops.
Berlin, July 28.—Reports from the Austrian border today state that the transportation of Austrian troops and munitions toward the Servian frontier, began yesterday and that there was no other traffic on the Bohemian railroads except that of troop trains.

French Premier Watchful.
Paris, July 28.—Rene Viviani, the French premier, who was on board the battleship La France in the English Sea today kept in frequent wireless communication with the foreign office here. He is returning to France as rapidly as possible and is due to arrive at Donceek tomorrow morning.

Russia Active.
Berlin, July 28.—An unconfirmed dispatch from Gumbinnen, eastern Prussia, to a local paper today says Russia has occupied Wirballen, Russian Poland, with a force of engineers, cavalry, artillery and two regiments of infantry, while Russian guards have been placed along all roads on the frontier. The city is held by a squad of German Uhlans has advanced to Eydkubien, on the Russian frontier.

Aske Attitude.
Rome, Italy, July 28.—Authoritative advices received here from Bucharest state that Germany has asked for positive assurances from Rumania of her intentions in connection with the Austro-Servian situation.

CAILLAUX TRIAL IS NEARING ITS CLOSE

Lawyers Begin Their Closing Arguments Against the Defendant in Case.
Paris, July 28.—Mme. Henriette Caillaux looked worn and ill when she was brought today in the prisoner's enclosure of the criminal court of the palace of justice for the eighth day's session of her trial. She shook her head wearily and crouched on the bench with her face in her hands.

The proceedings continued with a speech by Edouard Seligman, one of the attorneys representing the family of the murdered editor.

A few minutes after the session opened Mme. Caillaux again fainted in court, and Judge Albaladejo suspended the sitting.

Mme. Caillaux has been growing visibly weaker as the sitting continued, and appeared unconscious of what was occurring in court. A hot water bottle was placed beneath her feet, and a cushion at her back when she entered the courtroom.

In the meantime Seligman continued his speech:

"The sons of Gaston Calmette asked us to bring them to this court to seek justice," he said. "We refused to do so, but do not forget, gentlemen of the jury, with what anguish the orphans await your verdict. You have heard witness after witness speak in praise of M. Calmette. There has been only one discordant note, and that came from M. Caillaux. When the connection with the case has the fortune of the murdered man. How many millions must a man have in order to permit his being assassinated with complete impunity?"

The jury was next addressed by Maurice Cheu, and he is cutting analysis of the actions of Mme. Caillaux was too much for the prisoner. She collapsed and fell on the floor.

"I will speak of nothing except the assassination of Calmette," Cheu was saying. "I will ask the love of her daughter, she thought of the two children of Calmette, whose pictures never left him. I shall not go into the biography of Mme. Caillaux. She is a cool, sensible woman, without emotion or pity. She has tears only for herself."

FIFTEEN MINERS LOST LIVES IN GERMAN MINE TODAY

Dortmunder, Germany, July 28.—Fifteen coal miners were killed today by a fire which broke out in the Hanseman pit. Six of their bodies were recovered.

Success Tools

Writing on the benefits of newspaper advertising to the national advertisers, Richard A. Folger says:

"Newspaper advertising shortens the process of building success, and sweetens the task. In its co-relation to business it is somewhat different from magazine advertising. It obtains quicker and more centralized results. It provides a method of intensive cultivation."

"It has a peculiarly awakening effect upon a community because while the men and women of say, Philadelphia, Chicago, or Milwaukee might know in a detached sort of way about national products, the importance of their own use of these products is much more strongly impressed upon them by the rather personal application of articles advertised in newspapers, to their own lives and affairs."

REPORTS FIGHTING STILL IN PROGRESS NEAR MEXICO CITY

General Funston Tells of Activity Against Zapatistas—Secretary Bryan Warns Carranza.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, July 28.—General Funston reported today that the Mexican federal forces in Mexico City had taken the offensive against the Zapatistas and driven them from nearby towns. He says there are 30,000 federal troops in the Mexican capital.

Constitutionalist troops have become very active along the railroad between Soledad and Orizaba, but are acting in independent bands. One band of about two hundred men is said to be laying waste the section south of Vera Cruz towards the seacoast.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Bryan appealed to General Carranza asking him to call a halt upon Villa's warring army across the border, and to make a wholesale sale of demands for horses upon ranch owners in the state of Chihuahua. Consular advices to the state department also declared the northern general was struggling across the border as rapidly as they were available. There was no doubt in the minds of the people of Chihuahua as to the meanings of Villa's activity, the dispatches to the department indicated.

Recent reports from the border have intimated that Villa intended to concentrate his forces in the Chihuahua district with the aim of demanding certain concessions from Carranza after the constitutionalists occupy Mexico City. However, in response to an appeal from the Washington government urging him to forget personal differences with Carranza, General Villa, it is believed, intended to cooperate with the other revolutionary leaders, and would do all in his power to inaugurate an era of peace in Mexico.

Today's reports renewed speculation over the ultimate position that the military peace will take.

REPUBLICANS TABOO FILIBUSTER TACTICS

Senators Opposed to Administration Anti-Trust Program Will Fight Squarely.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, July 28.—The senate republicans in a conference today decided not to filibuster against the trust bills. They are opposed to them and will say so in speeches, but their aim is to bring about adjustment of the "soot" possibilities of the senate convened today, discussion of the trade commission bill was resumed.

Other Measures.
Western senators want to include in this session's program in congress the general dam bill now under consideration in the house, the radium bill, the Alaskan coal lands bill and the general mineral leasing bill, and will ask for a democratic caucus next week on the subject. Other democrats will urge postponement through the winter session.

WOMAN REFUSES AID TO AN INJURED MAN

Mrs. Helen M. Angle of Stamford, Connecticut, Held Criminally Responsible for Politician's Death.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Stamford, Conn., July 28.—Mrs. Helen M. Angle is held criminally responsible for the death of Waldo R. Ballou, a prominent politician here, on the night of June 23, in a finding made by Coroner John C. Phalen today.

Ballou was discovered dying outside a small town business building in which Mrs. Angle had apartments. To the police that night Mrs. Angle said that she had found Ballou at the foot of a flight of stairs in the building after he had left her, and that in the belief he was dazed from a fall or from liquor he was carried from a fall or from liquor on the door step of the entrance. Ballou died from fractured skull.

BUFFETS ATTACKED AT MOOSE MEETING

Endorse Law Against Buffets in Moose Clubs in "Dry" Districts at Convention.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Milwaukee, July 28.—Stricter jurisdiction over the management of Moose club houses; elimination of buffets in clubs of "dry" states; club buffets in "wet" states should be under the jurisdiction of the lodge entirely, and that the "no treating" law should be strictly enforced—these are among recommendations of Supreme Dictator Walter D. Doris of the Royal Order of Moose, submitted in annual convention today.

Director General James J. Davis reported a large increase in membership. He recommended the election from the order of all members who followed the creed of "no flag, no God, no government." Action was taken by the supreme lodge which prohibited women's circles in the order of the Moose from using the name of Moose.

CONSIDERS WINSLOW FOR SUPREME BENCH

President Wilson Considers Wisconsin Supreme Court Judge For Vacancy in Supreme Court.
Washington, July 28.—President Wilson is considering Chief Justice John B. Winslow of the Wisconsin supreme court for the vacancy in the United States supreme court.

WHEAT PRICES TAKE A DECISIVE JUMP AS WAR NEWS ARRIVES

Prices Go Up Three Cents Per Bushel in Chicago This Morning Amid Excitement.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chicago, July 28.—Immense expansion of the trade in wheat followed the announcement today that war had been officially declared. In a few minutes the market touched a point of about three cents a bushel higher than prices earlier in the session, and two and a half cents above the minimum value near the opening of business.

Today's news of the mobilization of the British battle squadrons of the British battle squadrons in connection with the Austro-Servian troubles coming just before the gong cleared the wheat pit, caused the market to close with a state of wild excitement today with September at 93½, a jump of nine cents a bushel compared with twenty-four hours before. The close was at the topmost point of the day.

Tumultuous scenes not often equaled in recent years characterized the war trading in wheat, but bulletins telling of the actual existence of formal hostilities caused the pit to become scarier and scarier after it was known that Germany had declined to take a hand in the proposed conference at London.

LOWER STREET CAR RATES IN SUPERIOR

Judge Stevens Affirms Railroad Commission's Order to Sell Six Tickets for Twenty-five Cents.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 28.—The city of Superior won its fight in the circuit court of Dane county today for lower street car rates. Judge Stevens entered an order affirming the order of the railroad commission requiring the sale of six tickets for twenty-five cents. The court further held that judgment be entered dismissing plaintiff's complaint and dissolving the injunction entered on Nov. 30, 1912, said judgment having been affirmed to confirm such portions of said order as requires the plaintiff to redeem the coupons issued by the plaintiff pursuant to the order.

In the opinion of the court other party may within ten days file with the court and serve on the opposing parties requests for additional findings of fact and suggestions as to the form of the findings.

The street car company contended that the five cent fare was stipulated in the franchise and could not be reduced by the railroad commission. Judge Stevens cites the Milwaukee street car case in overruling this order and adds that "the wording of the Superior franchise more clearly indicates that the provision as to a five cent fare is merely a limitation on the amount of the fare that may be charged than does the language which was under consideration in the Milwaukee case."

Judge Stevens finds that the value of the street car properties in Superior were reasonably worth $700,000.

The order of the railroad commission will undoubtedly increase the sale of tickets and thereby increase the revenue per passenger for those that use the tickets," says the decision. "But it is by no means certain that the increased sale of tickets will compensate for the increased cost of traffic due to the use of the tickets and to the natural growth of the city. Among the most striking examples of the effect of reduced fares is the increased density of traffic which followed the enactment of the two-cent fare law in Wisconsin."

"The order of the commission does not make sweeping reductions in the rate of fares; it does not change the present cash fare. The proof falls far short of the clear and satisfactory evidence required to satisfy the court that the order of the commission is either unlawful or unreasonable."

AYLWARD-HUSTING SLATE IS COMPLETE

Full List of Candidates for State Officers Announced to Oppose Karol.
Milwaukee, July 28.—Harry C. Truesdel of Berlin was brought out for secretary of state, and Adolph C. Dick of Milwaukee for state treasurer on the Aylward-Husting democratic slate last night, completing the ticket to go before the primaries in opposition to the Karol-Kearney slate.

The complete ticket as announced last night by Dr. W. L. Coffey, manager of the Aylward-Husting campaign, is as follows:

United States Senator—Paul O. Hustling, Mayville.
Governor—John Aylward, Madison.
Lieutenant Governor—Melvin A. Hoyt, Milwaukee.
Secretary of State—Harry C. Truesdel, Berlin.
State Treasurer—Adolph C. Dick, Milwaukee.
Attorney General—Evan Evans, Baraboo.

"We will have the papers for all the candidates in circulation by tomorrow morning," said Mr. Coffey last night. "There is no question but we shall have all the signatures necessary and the papers ready by Friday."

BUFFETS ATTACKED AT MOOSE MEETING

Endorse Law Against Buffets in Moose Clubs in "Dry" Districts at Convention.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Milwaukee, July 28.—Stricter jurisdiction over the management of Moose club houses; elimination of buffets in clubs of "dry" states; club buffets in "wet" states should be under the jurisdiction of the lodge entirely, and that the "no treating" law should be strictly enforced—these are among recommendations of Supreme Dictator Walter D. Doris of the Royal Order of Moose, submitted in annual convention today.

Director General James J. Davis reported a large increase in membership. He recommended the election from the order of all members who followed the creed of "no flag, no God, no government." Action was taken by the supreme lodge which prohibited women's circles in the order of the Moose from using the name of Moose.

CONSIDERS WINSLOW FOR SUPREME BENCH

President Wilson Considers Wisconsin Supreme Court Judge For Vacancy in Supreme Court.
Washington, July 28.—President Wilson is considering Chief Justice John B. Winslow of the Wisconsin supreme court for the vacancy in the United States supreme court.

EASTERN LIABILITY COMPANY IS SCORED

STATE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION IN ANNUAL REPORT SHOWS UP DISCREPANCIES. RATES ARE TOO HIGH
Wisconsin Employers Are Said to be Paying Losses of Eastern Companies. Many Employes Under Act.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 28.—Residing breaking conventional precedents by publishing its annual report only thirty days instead of a year or two after the end of the fiscal year, the industrial commission, in its third annual report, scores the Eastern Liability company, champions the cause of Wisconsin employers in an attack on the workmen's compensation service bureau of New York, which maintains a staff of so-called actuaries to figure out liability insurance rates for American manufacturers and business men. This bureau, says the report, is maintained by twenty of the large eastern stock companies which workmen's compensation insurance policies.

Shows Up Eastern Bureau.
The industrial commission report handles the eastern stock liability insurance companies without gloves. The report charges the Eastern bureau that it reaches its insurance rates through scientific calculations. Then it proceeds to prove its point by means of comparative tabulations of rates in different states in similar industries, all the rates having been established by the workmen's compensation service bureau.

After going into detail regarding these discrepancies the report says: "The most flaming comparison in rates is that between New York and Wisconsin. Rates for these states, like all others, have been fixed by the bureau. The New York compensation act in effect July 1, 1911, is the most expensive in the United States. The New York scale of compensation is 66 per cent of wages with a maximum of $9.27 in Wisconsin. Altogether the cost of compensation in New York exceeds the cost in Wisconsin by 50 per cent. Yet the bureau rates in New York are lower in nearly every industry. On a basis of actual cost the New York rate is 150 per cent of the cost of the Wisconsin rates. It cannot honestly be claimed that the same industries are more hazardous in Wisconsin than in New York. Quite the contrary, Wisconsin leads the nation in accident prevention."

Wisconsin Pays Difference.
The report intimates that possibly the eastern companies are favoring eastern industry at the expense of business men in the west. If the fact of the comparison in the bureau's charges is inadequate rates in the east," says the commission, "they should not be allowed to make up their losses in Wisconsin. Wisconsin enactment of a sufficient extent that they will not knowingly consent to pay the losses of eastern competitors. If stock insurance companies will not provide equitable insurance rates, some of late or never."

The solution may be mutual insurance or it may be state insurance."

In connection with insurance rates in Wisconsin, the industrial commission's report relates the history of rate-making in this state and shows how the companies in the east deliberately started out three years ago to kill the principle of workmen's compensation by setting prohibitive rates. These attacks naturally were first centered on Wisconsin because Wisconsin was the first state to enact workmen's compensation and to eradicate the intolerable old common law system of fighting the claims of injured workmen and their widows and children. This attitude of the east in its attempt to overthrow the ever-growing proof that workmen's compensation has come to stay.

Serves 250,000 Employees.
At the present time, says the report, 12,500 Wisconsin employers and about 250,000 employees are under the workmen's compensation act. In fact, the report relates that 93 per cent of the industrial accidents in the state now are subject to the act meaning, of course, that the victims of these accidents obtain relief without even a thought of a charge against the employer. The act provides methods, slyster lawyers or claim agents. They get relief in medical attendance and 65 per cent of their wages; and they get it right away instead of late or never.

With an apparent aim to forestall extravagant charges of administrative opponents, the commission's report comes right out in the open as to the expense of administering the workmen's compensation act. The cost for the year was $13,210.98. During that period 10,855 cases were handled. This gives an average of $1.20 a case as compared with $2.10 last year and $3.18 the year before. In relation to the amount of money paid out in compensation the Wisconsin administrative cost is a bare 2 per cent.

LOWER STREET CAR RATES IN SUPERIOR

Judge Stevens Affirms Railroad Commission's Order to Sell Six Tickets for Twenty-five Cents.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 28.—The city of Superior won its fight in the circuit court of Dane county today for lower street car rates. Judge Stevens entered an order affirming the order of the railroad commission requiring the sale of six tickets for twenty-five cents. The court further held that judgment be entered dismissing plaintiff's complaint and dissolving the injunction entered on Nov. 30, 1912, said judgment having been affirmed to confirm such portions of said order as requires the plaintiff to redeem the coupons issued by the plaintiff pursuant to the order.

In the opinion of the court other party may within ten days file with the court and serve on the opposing parties requests for additional findings of fact and suggestions as to the form of the findings.

The street car company contended that the five cent fare was stipulated in the franchise and could not be reduced by the railroad commission. Judge Stevens cites the Milwaukee street car case in overruling this order and adds that "the wording of the Superior franchise more clearly indicates that the provision as to a five cent fare is merely a limitation on the amount of the fare that may be charged than does the language which was under consideration in the Milwaukee case."

Judge Stevens finds that the value of the street car properties in Superior were reasonably worth $700,000.

The order of the railroad commission will undoubtedly increase the sale of tickets and thereby increase the revenue per passenger for those that use the tickets," says the decision. "But it is by no means certain that the increased sale of tickets will compensate for the increased cost of traffic due to the use of the tickets and to the natural growth of the city. Among the most striking examples of the effect of reduced fares is the increased density of traffic which followed the enactment of the two-cent fare law in Wisconsin."

"The order of the commission does not make sweeping reductions in the rate of fares; it does not change the present cash fare. The proof falls far short of the clear and satisfactory evidence required to satisfy the court that the order of the commission is either unlawful or unreasonable."

WOMAN REFUSES AID TO AN INJURED MAN

Mrs. Helen M. Angle of Stamford, Connecticut, Held Criminally Responsible for Politician's Death.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Stamford, Conn., July 28.—Mrs. Helen M. Angle is held criminally responsible for the death of Waldo R. Ballou, a prominent politician here, on the night of June 23, in a finding made by Coroner John C. Phalen today.

Ballou was discovered dying outside a small town business building in which Mrs. Angle had apartments. To the police that night Mrs. Angle said that she had found Ballou at the foot of a flight of stairs in the building after he had left her, and that in the belief he was dazed from a fall or from liquor he was carried from a fall or from liquor on the door step of the entrance. Ballou died from fractured skull.

AYLWARD-HUSTING SLATE IS COMPLETE

Full List of Candidates for State Officers Announced to Oppose Karol.
Milwaukee, July 28.—Harry C. Truesdel of Berlin was brought out for secretary of state, and Adolph C. Dick of Milwaukee for state treasurer on the Aylward-Husting democratic slate last night, completing the ticket to go before the primaries in opposition to the Karol-Kearney slate.

The complete ticket as announced last night by Dr. W. L. Coffey, manager of the Aylward-Husting campaign, is as follows:

United States Senator—Paul O. Hustling, Mayville.
Governor—John Aylward, Madison.
Lieutenant Governor—Melvin A. Hoyt, Milwaukee.
Secretary of State—Harry C. Truesdel, Berlin.
State Treasurer—Adolph C. Dick, Milwaukee.
Attorney General—Evan Evans, Baraboo.

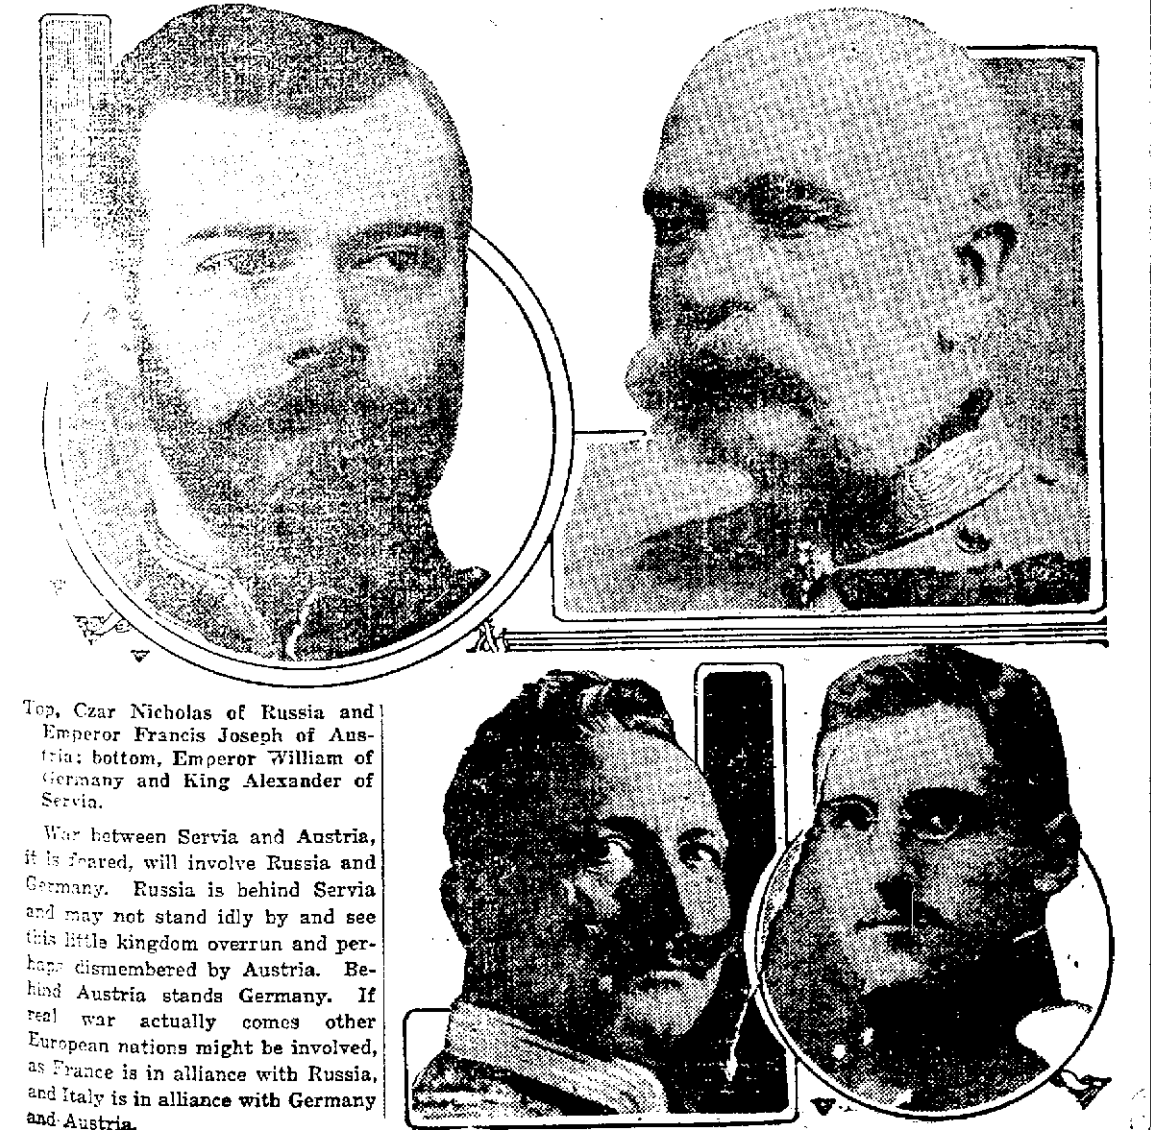

"We will have the papers for all the candidates in circulation by tomorrow morning," said Mr. Coffey last night. "There is no question but we shall have all the signatures necessary and the papers ready by Friday."

GUNRUNNERS EVADE BRITISH WARSHIPS

Four Thousand Rifles for Volunteers, Smuggled Past Guards to Dublin in Motor Cars.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Dublin, Ireland, July 28.—A consignment of four thousand rifles for the Irish nationalist volunteers was landed during the night at Newcastle. The gun runners evaded the coast guards and police, and conveyed the weapons to Dublin in motor cars. Two gunboats were in the bay at the time, flashing their lights.

Another batch of 1,000 rifles was landed near Kilcock, also in Wicklow. The coroner's inquest into the killing of Sunday's fighting between the King's Own Scottish Borderers and the crowd, was adjourned till Thursday at the request of the lawyers representing the soldiers, who asked for time to prepare defenses.

CLASH BETWEEN SERBIA AND AUSTRIA MAY INVOLVE RUSSIA AND GERMANY AND PRECIPITATE BLOODY EUROPEAN CONFLICT

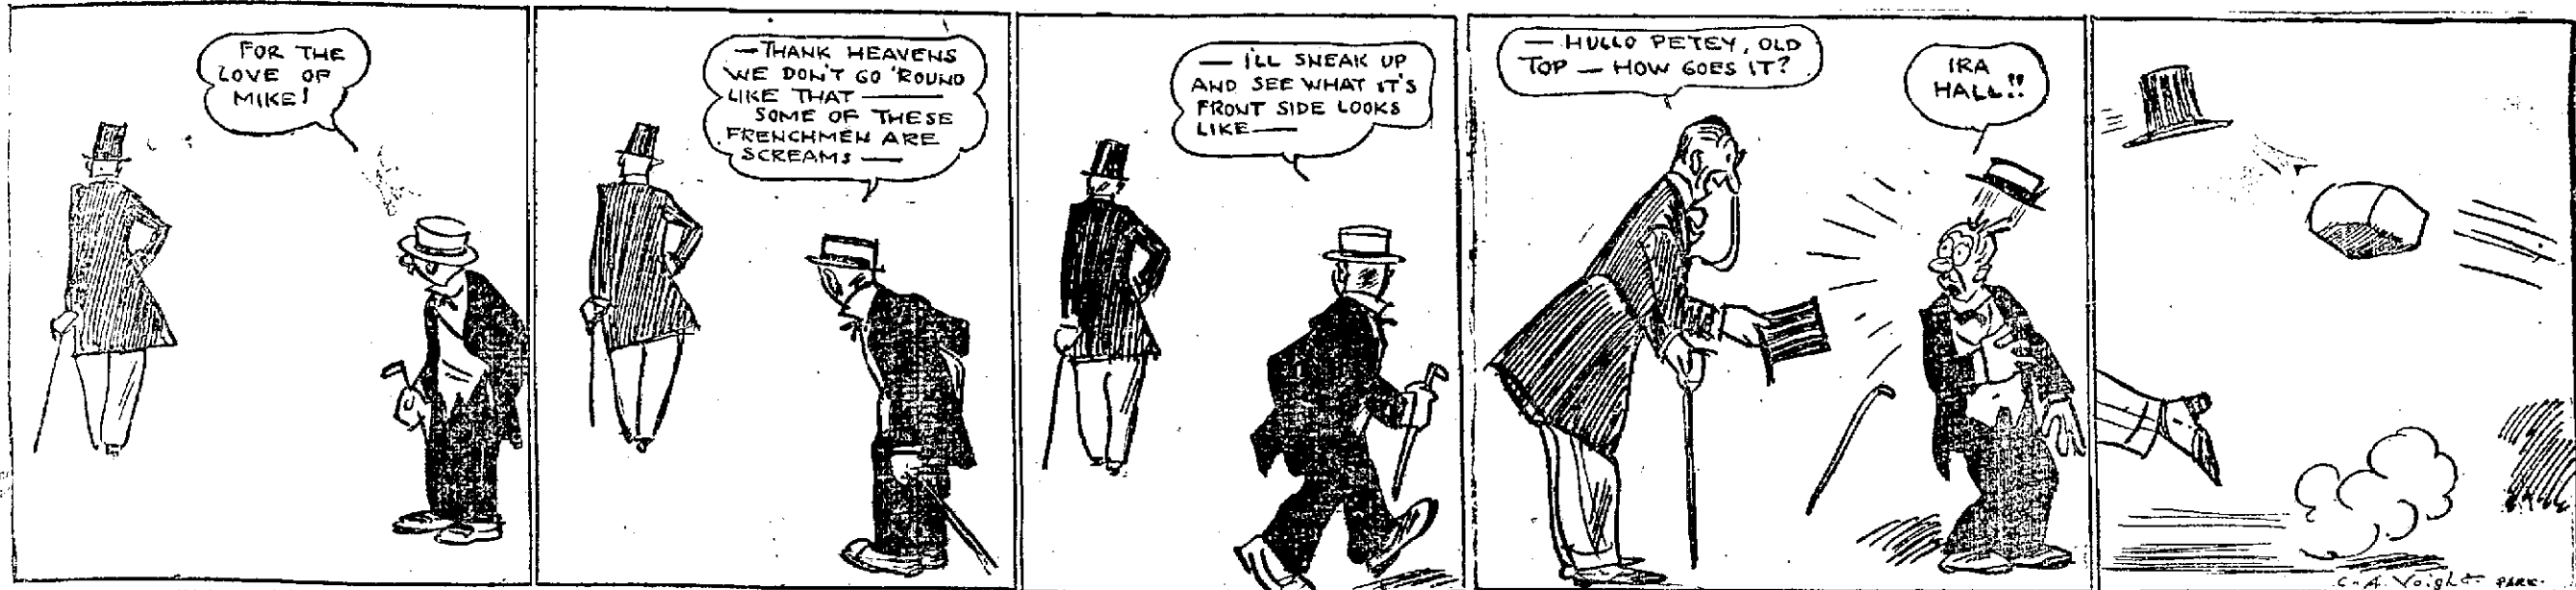

Top, Czar Nicholas of Russia and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria; bottom, Emperor William of Germany and King Alexander of Servia.

War between Servia and Austria, it is feared, will involve Russia and Germany. Russia is behind Servia and may not stand idly by and see this little kingdom overrun and perhaps dismembered by Austria. Behind Austria stands Germany. If real war actually comes other European nations might be involved, as France is in alliance with Russia, and Italy is in alliance with Germany and Austria.

SPORTS

BIG LEAGUE NINES MAY TOUR ENGLAND

Willie Hoppe Starts Tuning Up For Matches With English Title Holder—Sporting Notes.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) New York, July 28.—Reports that two big league baseball clubs will tour England and parts of continental Europe again next winter have led to several requests that the teams visit England during the trip. This is accepted as bearing out the statements that baseball is really gaining a following in the British Isles. Writing on the subject a well known American athlete now abroad states there is evidence that cricket is losing some of its popularity among English sports devotees. His comments follow:

"The White Sox and the Giants made more of an impression in England than one would suspect from reading the newspaper accounts of the game in the English papers. I have found out that the English appreciate the speed of our game as compared to cricket; that they marvel at the accurate throwing and catching and liked the idea of the game being completed in one afternoon instead of three days as cricket does. I am told that cricket is losing its hold on the people, that baseball clubs have already been formed and that many have given up cricket for baseball. The opportunities for playing both baseball and tennis are far greater here than in the larger cities of the eastern states."

"For instance, London, which sets the athletic fashion for England is naturally superior to New York as a training ground for athletes, principally because of the hundreds of tennis courts, where there are tennis courts and a large space in which to exercise or play baseball. Any one who lives in the houses surrounding these parks is entitled to the use of the courts and exercises and there are so many of these parks that almost everyone has an opportunity to get good healthy exercise, especially in the summer time, when the parks last until nine o'clock in the evening."

Starts Practice. William Hoppe, the world's champion billiard player, has started practice for his match at English billiards to be played against Melbourne in the English title holder. He arrived in this country last week and will in all probability proceed to Montreal where he will prepare for the matches which are to be played both the English and billiard games.

Australian Yacht. It is reported that an Australian-owned yacht, manned by an Australian crew, will take part in the Olympic regatta and other European sailing features in 1916. Walter Marks of the Royal Sydney Yacht Club and Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club, who is the moving spirit of Australian sailing, is greatly interested in the project and will undoubtedly be prominent in the building and naming of the yacht.

Americans in Trouble. According to American athletes, there are in various European track and field meets American trainers who are not finding the foreign conditions as they expected. It is reported that the American athletes are not finding the foreign conditions as they expected. It is reported that the American athletes are not finding the foreign conditions as they expected. It is reported that the American athletes are not finding the foreign conditions as they expected.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

American Association.
St. Paul	37	28
Rockford	30	45
Wausau	26	48
National League.
St. Paul	37	28
Rockford	30	45
Wausau	26	48
American League.
St. Paul	37	28
Rockford	30	45
Wausau	26	48
Federal League.
St. Paul	37	28
Rockford	30	45
Wausau	26	48
Wisconsin-Illinois League.
St. Paul	37	28
Rockford	30	45
Wausau	26	48

RESULTS OF MONDAY'S GAMES.

American Association.
Milwaukee-Louisville, rain.
St. Paul, 5; Columbus, 1.
Cleveland, 4; Minneapolis, 3.
Kansas City, 10; Indianapolis, 7.
American League.
Boston, 3; Cleveland, 0.
New York, 5; Chicago, 0.
Philadelphia, 8; Detroit, 5.
Washington, 7; St. Louis, 6 (10 innings).
National League.
Boston, 5; Chicago, 3.
Pittsburgh, 3; New York, 1.
St. Louis, 9; Philadelphia, 4-2.
Cincinnati, 6; Brooklyn, 5.
Federal League.
Kansas City, 2; Pittsburgh, 1.
Buffalo, 2; Chicago, 2.
St. Louis, 5; Brooklyn, 2.
Indianapolis, 6; Baltimore, 2 (10 innings).
Wisconsin-Illinois League.
Green Bay, 1; Rockford, 1 (called in seventh).
Racine, 2; Appleton, 1 (10 innings).
Twins, 9; Madison, 0.
Wausau-Oshkosh, rain.

GAMES WEDNESDAY.

American League.
Philadelphia at St. Louis.
Washington at Detroit.
New York at Cleveland.
Boston at Chicago.
National League.
Chicago at Boston.
Cincinnati at Brooklyn.
St. Louis at Philadelphia.
Pittsburgh at New York.
Federal League.
Chicago at Buffalo.
Kansas City at Pittsburgh.
Indianapolis at Baltimore.
St. Louis at Brooklyn.

Sport Snap Shots

Clark Griffith has at last got Mike Mitchell from the Pirates. For a long while Griffith has been very eager to get Mike on his line-up and now he should be happy. Coming to Washington at a time when he's badly needed, with Mike Milan laid up, Mitchell will look good to Washington fans. He will join even better to Griffith, however, who holds Mike in high esteem as an outfielder. Mitchell and Griffith have long been good friends and when Mitchell played for Griffith at Cincinnati he seemed to get into the game. Mike himself is pleased with the change and feels sure that his playing will pick up a lot.

Bill Brennan, chief of the Fed umpiring staff, has a whole-hearted admiration for Spike Shannon, his associate. Shannon and Brennan some years ago were football players on opposing professional teams in St. Paul. They had also played on the same team. "I remember trying to tackle him once," says Brennan, "and I'd be as willing to go out and try it on a real heavy jump-post. He was as solid as a regular and a regular dare devil. I always respect him for the football player he used to be."

When Clark Griffith forfeited a game to the Athletics a while back, Connie Mack told one and that Griffith was a disgrace to the game. And yet it can be remembered that in a game with the Yanks in 1905 Connie was guilty of much the same behavior. A critical play in the ninth inning was suggested by Griffith and he was disappointed and Connie refused to continue unless the decision was changed. Which it wasn't, so the game was forfeited.

There's plenty of doubt now as to the Johnson-Moran bout's integrity. From Jack Johnson's statement it appears that the thing was all framed up and had been along. Moran, Johnson says, wouldn't meet him unless it was agreed that he be allowed to last the twenty rounds. The big smoke says that he was not double-crossed in any way, but that he was sewed up by the agreement to let Johnson win the twenty rounds. This report is being generally believed as it is known that heavy money had been put on Moran to stay the limit.

The Feds have every reason to be pleased with their success in the courts. They seem to have made real strides in getting a just view of the contracts of organized baseball. The Hal Chase victory added to the Chief Justice's decision will make their further court disputes all the easier. Sooner or later it will not be surprising if the Feds give O. B. a real jolt.

It seems that Charley Carr's comeback with the Feds is the real thing. He is hitting the ball at an awful clip and otherwise distinguishing himself.

AMUSEMENTS

APOLLO THEATRE. Tonight is amateur night at the Apollo Theatre, and for a headliner Ave Janesville boys will present a minstrel travesty that promises to be hilarious in its merit. The boys, who have appeared in local talent productions before, are busily rehearsing this big attraction. In addition there will be shown four reels of Mutual movies. It is safe to say that one will get a half dollar's worth of fun tonight for the dime. Tomorrow night "The Folk From Way Down East" will be shown in motion pictures in five parts.

If you are looking for help of any kind, read the Want Ads.

RUSH WORK WITH ALL THE SPEED POSSIBLE AT FAIR GROUNDS

Park Association Men Busy These Days Completing Arrangements for Coming Fair.

"Janesville is going to have a fair this year that will be a credit to every stockholder in the fair association." This significant statement was made by John Southman, one of the members of the board of directors of the Park association, under whose auspices the fair is being held. "We are rushing the work of completing the various buildings, cleaning up the grounds and long before the fair really opens we will be ready for the big event. The new buildings are almost all completed, the grandstand being the slowest to be finished, but that will be done in plenty of time and it will be a credit to the association and capable of seating the big crowds that will swarm to the grounds during fair week."

John C. Nichols, president of the association, is most optimistic over the fair. "Every feature that goes to make up a first-class fair has been attended to," he said. "I have completed the arrangements for the appearance here of George Gano, one of the fastest stallions in the country, owned by W. N. Savage. And not only this wonderful horse will be here, but Hazel Patch, one of the best colts in the country, is to enter the 2-13 pace, with entry money or taking part in the pace, and this should be a race worth watching. Then there is Electric Patch, one of Mr. Savage's most promising colts, a veritable wonder in the trotting line and others from his stable that he wants to be given experience in racing."

"Aside from the racing we have all sorts of special attractions for the enjoyment of the public and the exhibits in the various classes promise to be exceptional. I am glad to learn that the Janesville manufacturers and merchants are taking up the idea of having their displays in the new hall under the new grandstand, which will be light and airy and an ideal place for such displays. Many, I am informed, plan to put in permanent display booths and this will make this feature an annual affair."

Secretary Putnam is busy with the general oversight of the various exhibits. While superintendents have been named for various departments he is busy with general preparations. "I want to call attention to the Durock exhibit," he said. "This feature is simply wonderful. Prof. Durock stages a perfect English fox hunting hippodrome. With English hunting horses, riders and a team of best packs in the country, it will be a sight worth witnessing. Then he has some wonderful hurdle jumpers that do exceptional feats. His big school horses perform an excellent show and as good as can be found anywhere, and the polo game, with genuine polo ponies trained to the minute and expert players, is as exciting as can be wished for. This is a feature all in itself and makes its first appearance on Tuesday, Children's day, when we have special events arranged for the entertainment of our small visitors."

"The stock exhibits will be exceptionally fine and I have assurances from some of the big breeders that they will have the best of their herds here for exhibition purposes. The new horse show is an excellent place and permit everyone to view the fine blooded stock. The track is in excellent shape and before the fair opens all work will be finished and one of the best equipped grounds in the state will be ready."

Edward Amerpohl, treasurer of the association, says that the majority of stock subscriptions pledged have been paid in and he expects but little trouble in collecting the remainder. "I am glad that the Janesville housewives as well as those whom throughout the country, are planning to take part in the various exhibits open to them," he said. "This means a wonderful exhibit that will surprise many and recall the days of the old Rock county fair when the exhibits in these classes carried off honors that were not duplicated at any of the other fairs in the state. The interest in the coming fair shows that it has met a long-needed want and I am sure the people will not be disappointed."

"Concessionists are continually applying for space," said Harry Nowlan, who has charge of this end of the fair. "This assures us that the fair has received due prominence throughout the country and that these men who follow fairs, great and small, are coming to Janesville to have a fair of fairs this summer. I expect there will be a goodly number of local people renting concessions, but thus far those from outside have been in the majority. We shall endeavor to keep all these given permits free from any objectionable features."

Frank P. Croak and Dr. Wayne Munn, also directors, are confident that the fair will be a success. Mr. Croak said: "Everything is being done to make the exhibit one to be long remembered. I think it will be a surprise to many who have not realized the amount of work necessary to bring it about."

Dr. Munn said: "When the fair opens it is going to be complete in every detail with all the objectionable features of other fairs eliminated. It will be a clean show, just what a crowd got to be with lots of fine exhibits, good horse racing and plenty of free amusement. The grounds are in excellent shape and everything will be in readiness."

Daily Thought.
The man in love with himself seldom has a rival.—Richardson.

COOPER LOOKS GOOD FOR THE BIG SHOW

Cooper.

Right Fielder Cooper of the Scranton team in the New York State league is the man for whom Frank Chance offered $3,000 to Baltimore in mid-season of 1913. Before the deal could be closed he hurt his leg and this resulted in his being passed up and sent to Scranton. The injury has not bothered him this season and he is batting .300. He is easily the fastest runner and one of the best hit and run men ever seen in the State league.

Good Hint.
Vermoin of no kind will stay upon clothing that is scented with either oil of cloves, oil of cinnamon, anise oil, or cedar oil. This is a valuable secret for the traveler, for a small bottle will protect him from the vermin often found in hotel beds. No bedbug will venture between sheets so scented and a few drops is all that is required.

EXIT LARRY LAJOIE; ENTER J. FOURNIER

Jacques Fournier.

Growing Children and Study.
As soon as a child begins to grow rapidly all intellectual exertion should be checked. Such is the theory which Dr. C. Mercier, an English authority on children, expresses in an article in the London Lancet. Especially when there is any family tendency to nervous or mental disorder, rapidly growing children should be withdrawn from school altogether until the period of rapid growth is over.

Man Should Fear Wife.
A man doesn't have to be a coward to be afraid of his wife. The man who isn't afraid of his wife when he has done something he shouldn't have done hasn't much of a wife.

THE PAINTER GETS A GOOD COMBINATION

WHAT'S the good of a tobacco that makes you take a big wad and grind and grind on it? "Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew that gives you real tobacco satisfaction from a small chew. That's why men are glad to get "Right-Cut," and to pass the glad word along to every man who chews. It's pure, rich, tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

If your dealer does not sell it, send us 10c in stamps for a pouch of "Right-Cut" Chewing Tobacco.

WEYMAN-BRUTON COMPANY
50 Union Square, New York

READ GAZETTE WANT ADS

REHBERG'S

GREAT VALUES IN LADIES' WHITE SHOES

Three Big Lots, $1.25, $1.65, $1.95

WE have what is perhaps the ONLY complete stock of ladies' low white shoes in this city. Our stock contains practically every wanted size and all the different models. A belated shipment is responsible and we have all the white shoes necessary to allow us to make the above statement. Special prices prevail. We have marked these shoes in three lots for quick disposal. Lots of time yet to wear white shoes this season.

Baby Dolls
One Straps
Two Strap
$1.25

Baby Dolls
One Straps
Two Strap
Pumps
$1.65

Pumps
Colonials
$1.95

AMOS REHBERG COMPANY

Janesville's Greatest Clothing and Shoe Store.
Corner Milwaukee and River Streets.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A PERPLEXING QUESTION.

"W" I have a perplexing question. I have a friend, a most estimable character in every way, who has been a girl friend to me for many years. She is a human and would much prefer to be evened than to be a girl.

How many girls do you imagine have asked themselves that question since the day of the first woman friends and no fear of competition in her dealings with the male sex?

It is a perplexing question with as many angles to it as a diamond or a crabbed man's disposition.

Some women do not get on with the opposite sex because they lack the sparkle and the easy grace of manner which seems to be necessary to establish acquaintance with the average man.

I have in mind a very pretty girl who has had few male friends and not a single one to remain unmarried because she is so stiff and quiet and that it is almost impossible for a man to get acquainted with her.

Beauty has a good deal to do with the matter, but not so much as most people think. Prettiness is the show window; it attracts the crowd, but there must be something worth while inside the shop if there are to be any customers. The part of a girl's character which makes her a girl friend to me is her personality.

One man who marries for a pretty face there are at least five who are ensnared by some other quality.

Many women often intimidate men, especially the average man. For this type and for some others I have a word of encouragement later.

Other women fail to attract men simply because they are under-sexed and hence lacking in that often latent and unconscious but none the less powerful sex appeal, which is more potent to help a woman attract men than beauty or any other charm.

It is very much to be seen why a woman whom men do not like may be a woman's woman, for different qualities in a woman attract the two sexes. Now for the word of encouragement. Unpopularity is not unpopularity always. A woman may be unpopular with the ordinary type of man and yet very strongly attract some particular type. I once knew a girl who was hopelessly unpopular with the conventional type of man whom she met at home and at school. She became an aristocrat, met men who understood her, received the admiration and respect of the crowd and married happily.

Again, the girl who lacks the ability to get acquainted with men often has qualities under the surface which would attract them if they could know her. When circumstances throw this girl into propinquity with some man, he will often find himself as popular with at least one member of the other sex as he could desire.

My advice to any girl who wants more male friends is this: Study yourself; put your best foot forward; study other women and how they attract; don't be so anxious to please that you overreach; if you are inclined to be self-conscious, try to lose it; if you really want to get married, make a determined effort to meet the men of your own type.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have some friends living in the west, to whom I'm going to pay a visit this summer. Now I want to ask you what you think would be a nice gift for an elderly lady, a girl of sixteen, another of eighteen and still another of twenty-four?

There is also a young man of twenty-four and an old man of fifty-six. (1) What is the difference between "spoon" and "dirty" CHUMS.

(1) You can clean them with lemon. Rub the lemon over well, then off with a clean cloth, let dry, then polish with a good tan polish. (2) The color makes no difference in eyesight.

(3) Music, games, conversation, cats. (4) They are very much alike. Both are indulged in only by silly girls and boys, because no good ever comes of spooning or flirting. Both of them are make-believe love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl chums, sixteen years old. (1) How can you make tan shoes look like new? (2) What color eyes are the strongest—blue or brown? (3) How should you entertain your boy friends? (4) What is the difference between "spoon" and "dirty" CHUMS.

(1) You can clean them with lemon. Rub the lemon over well, then off with a clean cloth, let dry, then polish with a good tan polish. (2) The color makes no difference in eyesight.

(3) Music, games, conversation, cats. (4) They are very much alike. Both are indulged in only by silly girls and boys, because no good ever comes of spooning or flirting. Both of them are make-believe love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if you know how to reduce the bust? There is no safe way of reducing the bust, my dear, except to get thin all over. Violent exercise, an cutting down the amount of food you eat, will add to you to become thinner. Wearing a rubber garment around the bust will induce perspiration and will reduce somewhat, but you will find it uncomfortable.

A fine bust is a magnificent thing in a woman. Why try to change Nature's blessing?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl friends. We have known a boy for about a year. At first he treated us real nice; then he met another girl and didn't care for us any more. What do you think?

I think I wouldn't worry any more if I were you, my dear. He is just like every other boy—off with the old love, on with the new. The new is the prettiest to him. There are plenty of other boys. Show this one you can live without.

One Monday morning a person of an inquisitive turn of mind walked out to see what was to be heard in the world of women and their affairs. As Monday is supposed to be our national weekly wash-day it was busy, busy homes in this vicinity with the inquisitive mind entered.

The first place visited was a family of five children—that made seven people to wash for. The mother was running things in a manner that told you that she was a woman who understood the meaning of the words, system and efficiency. Of her family, three were girls, but they were in the harness as home-helps. The oldest was washing dishes, one of the girls standing on a chair wiping them, while the second boy was turning the wringer. "We all pull together on wash-day," said the woman, "but I don't mind doing the dishes, for in the forenoon, for one pair of hands could never do all this, no matter how willing they were—that is, and do all the other little tasks that are not left undone, if it is wash-day, then boys were two as fine young lads and their helping in the house evidently did not seem to tend to make them effeminate. One is captain of the team, the other a very efficient member of the team.

The second place visited was a home where there were three babies, and they were all babies too. The family wash was being done here also. This woman was fortunate in living in a home that had a large back porch with a cistern right on it. Two large trees beside it made it a pleasant place to be. She had all the necessary roots (that's what a workman calls the implements he uses to aid him in his work) to simplify washing. In the ous and friendly as a rule. Simply friends living in the west, to whom I'm going to pay a visit this summer. Now I want to ask you what you think would be a nice gift for an elderly lady, a girl of sixteen, another of eighteen and still another of twenty-four?

There is also a young man of twenty-four and an old man of fifty-six. (1) What is the difference between "spoon" and "dirty" CHUMS.

(1) You can clean them with lemon. Rub the lemon over well, then off with a clean cloth, let dry, then polish with a good tan polish. (2) The color makes no difference in eyesight.

(3) Music, games, conversation, cats. (4) They are very much alike. Both are indulged in only by silly girls and boys, because no good ever comes of spooning or flirting. Both of them are make-believe love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if you know how to reduce the bust? There is no safe way of reducing the bust, my dear, except to get thin all over. Violent exercise, an cutting down the amount of food you eat, will add to you to become thinner. Wearing a rubber garment around the bust will induce perspiration and will reduce somewhat, but you will find it uncomfortable.

A fine bust is a magnificent thing in a woman. Why try to change Nature's blessing?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl friends. We have known a boy for about a year. At first he treated us real nice; then he met another girl and didn't care for us any more. What do you think?

I think I wouldn't worry any more if I were you, my dear. He is just like every other boy—off with the old love, on with the new. The new is the prettiest to him. There are plenty of other boys. Show this one you can live without.

One Monday morning a person of an inquisitive turn of mind walked out to see what was to be heard in the world of women and their affairs. As Monday is supposed to be our national weekly wash-day it was busy, busy homes in this vicinity with the inquisitive mind entered.

The first place visited was a family of five children—that made seven people to wash for. The mother was running things in a manner that told you that she was a woman who understood the meaning of the words, system and efficiency. Of her family, three were girls, but they were in the harness as home-helps. The oldest was washing dishes, one of the girls standing on a chair wiping them, while the second boy was turning the wringer. "We all pull together on wash-day," said the woman, "but I don't mind doing the dishes, for in the forenoon, for one pair of hands could never do all this, no matter how willing they were—that is, and do all the other little tasks that are not left undone, if it is wash-day, then boys were two as fine young lads and their helping in the house evidently did not seem to tend to make them effeminate. One is captain of the team, the other a very efficient member of the team.

The second place visited was a home where there were three babies, and they were all babies too. The family wash was being done here also. This woman was fortunate in living in a home that had a large back porch with a cistern right on it. Two large trees beside it made it a pleasant place to be. She had all the necessary roots (that's what a workman calls the implements he uses to aid him in his work) to simplify washing. In the ous and friendly as a rule. Simply friends living in the west, to whom I'm going to pay a visit this summer. Now I want to ask you what you think would be a nice gift for an elderly lady, a girl of sixteen, another of eighteen and still another of twenty-four?

There is also a young man of twenty-four and an old man of fifty-six. (1) What is the difference between "spoon" and "dirty" CHUMS.

(1) You can clean them with lemon. Rub the lemon over well, then off with a clean cloth, let dry, then polish with a good tan polish. (2) The color makes no difference in eyesight.

(3) Music, games, conversation, cats. (4) They are very much alike. Both are indulged in only by silly girls and boys, because no good ever comes of spooning or flirting. Both of them are make-believe love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if you know how to reduce the bust? There is no safe way of reducing the bust, my dear, except to get thin all over. Violent exercise, an cutting down the amount of food you eat, will add to you to become thinner. Wearing a rubber garment around the bust will induce perspiration and will reduce somewhat, but you will find it uncomfortable.

A fine bust is a magnificent thing in a woman. Why try to change Nature's blessing?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl friends. We have known a boy for about a year. At first he treated us real nice; then he met another girl and didn't care for us any more. What do you think?

I think I wouldn't worry any more if I were you, my dear. He is just like every other boy—off with the old love, on with the new. The new is the prettiest to him. There are plenty of other boys. Show this one you can live without.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

If you would not be forgotten, as soon as you are dead and rotten, either write things worth reading, or do things worth writing.

None but the well-bred man knows how to confess a fault, or acknowledge himself in error.—Benjamin Franklin.

THE SEASONABLE BERRIES.

As the different berries of which we are all so fond, appear, let us serve them in a variety of attractive ways so that they will always seem a new dish.

Current Pudding.—Put a cupful of tapioca in a small strainer and let cold water run through it to cleanse it; pour boiling water over it and cook in a double boiler until the tapioca is transparent; add a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and stir often while cooking. Pick over a quart of ripe currants, wash and drain, then sprinkle with two cupfuls of sugar, turn the tapioca over them and set away to cool. Serve ice cold with cream.

Raspberry Sandwiches.—Cut sponge cake into pieces of suitable size for serving individually, and split each piece. Have ready a box of red raspberries, slightly crushed; put the berries between and above each layer, dust the top thickly with powdered sugar and serve with whipped cream.

Raspberry Ice.—Sprinkle one quart of berries with one cupful of sugar, cover and let stand two hours. Wash and squeeze through a cheese cloth. Add one cupful of cold water and lemon juice to taste; then freeze.

Gloucester Blueberry Cake.—Cream four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-half cup of sugar and add one beaten egg and a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt; dissolve a half teaspoonful of soda in a half cupful of sour milk, add this; sift two cupfuls of flour, reserving a fourth of a cupful to cover the berries. Mix all together and add the floured berries. Bake in a shallow pan in a hot oven 30 minutes. Serve broken, not cut.

Frozen Cherries.—Boil a cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water about ten minutes, add two cupfuls of cherry pulp that has been put through a colander. Pour into a freezer, freeze and serve with a large cherry on top.

A delicious sauce is made with cream, a half cupful, and a glass of currant jelly, whipped until smooth. Pour this around any sweet pudding, like snowballs or any simple dough mixture, steamed.

Things Worth Knowing.—Drop a little flour into the hot fat when preparing to fry eggs, if you would prevent the spluttering of the fat.

The edges of a saucepan are well buttered the contents will not boil over.

Cold boiled potatoes cut lengthwise and broiled are delicious. Serve piping hot with plenty of butter, pepper and salt.

Instead of using a flatiron to steam velvet, try a soapstone and see how much better and smoother the velvet will be.

The Table.—Canned Blackberries.—For a quart can take one cupful of water and one cupful of sugar, and boil together skimming off any scum. Put in two boxes or quarts of berries and let cook a few minutes, just enough to heat the berries thoroughly clear through; too long cooking will make them hard. Have the cans thoroughly scalded, set in a dish of water, fill brimful with the boiling hot fruit and seal at once as tight as possible, with well heated rubbers and covers. When cold, keep in a cool, dark place.

Blackberry Preserves.—Select large ripe, firm berries, and to each pound allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar. Spread the berries on plates or platters and sprinkle the sugar over them, let them stand for one or two hours, then put into the preserving kettle with all the juice, but adding no water. Let them heat slightly until scalded, but not boiled, skim out the berries on to plates, let the syrup boil rapidly for five minutes, then put back the berries and let simmer (not boil) for ten or fifteen minutes. If they show a tendency to break, take them from the fire at once, and seal in glass cans.

Spiced Blackberries.—Put one cupful of vinegar in a preserving kettle, add two cupfuls of sugar, two and one-half pounds of blackberries and one tablespoonful each of allspice, cinnamon and cloves, tied in a bit of muslin. Bring to a boil, then skim out the blackberries, boil the syrup for one hour, put back the berries and let boil for fifteen minutes, then put in jars and cover tightly.

Blackberry Jelly.—Choose large juicy berries that are rather under ripe, wash well, and drain through a jelly bag. Measure the juice and allow the same amount of sugar. Heat the juice in a preserving kettle and at the same time have the sugar heating in the oven until hot but not colored at all. Let the juice boil for twenty minutes, add the hot sugar, stirring until dissolved, let boil for a few minutes, or until it will jelly when a little is cooled.

Blackberry and Apple Jelly.—Wash three pounds of sour apples and cut in quarters without peeling or coring. Remove any imperfections, and the blossom ends. Put them in a preserving kettle with two quarts of water and two pounds of blackberries. Let them boil until the apples pulp, then put in a jelly bag and let the juice drain off. Boil the juice for twenty minutes, add an equal amount of hot sugar, and let boil rapidly until it will jelly.

Corn Bread (With Buttermilk).—Two cups of buttermilk, three well beaten eggs, two scant cups of Indian meal (white), one rounded teaspoonful of soda, one tablespoonful of sugar. Beat the eggs separately, sift the soda twice through the meal and add one teaspoonful of salt. Beat the ingredients well together, adding the whites last of all. Bake in a moderate oven in muffin rings, with a large spoonful of batter to each, and cook to a golden brown.

Fig Pudding.—One quarter pound of suet, one-half pound of figs finely chopped, one large sour apple (cored, pared and chopped), one-quarter pound of brown sugar, one-quarter pound of bread crumbs, one-quarter cup of milk, two eggs, three ounces of flour. Cream the suet and add the figs, apple and the sugar. Pour the milk over the bread crumbs and add yolks of the eggs, well beaten; combine the mixture, add the flour and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Turn into a buttered pudding mould and steam four hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

Boiled Beef's Heart.—Wash the heart and soak for half an hour in cold, salted water. Wipe and stuff the ventricles with a forcemeat of bread crumbs and chopped ham or salt pork, minced fine and well seasoned. Sew up in a cheesecloth fitted to the heart, and bring slowly to a boil in salted water, to which a tablespoonful of vinegar has been added. Boil gently two hours, turning the heart several times. Remove the cloth and put the heart on a dish. Pour a pleasant sauce over it.

Hard Sauce.—One-third cup of butter, one cup of powdered sugar, one-third teaspoonful of lemon extract, two-thirds teaspoonful of vanilla. Cream the butter and add the sugar gradually, and the flavoring.

It Couldn't Hurt Her.—Mama—"Keep quiet, Edna. You never hear me cry when my hair is being combed." Small Edna—"Yes, but a lot of your hair hasn't hitched to your head."

Grandma Sez.—TUESDAY. "Some men think that puttin' on a silk hat an' a white tie disguises them as gentlemen."

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.—Dr. T. Felix Gouraud's Oriental Cream OR MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 66 years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of this name.

Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haughty (patience) As you ladies will use them, I recommend "Felix's Cream" as the best of all the skin preparations. At druggists and Department Stores.

Felix T. Hopkins & Son, Props., 37 Great Jones St., N.Y.C.

Peggy & Company

Wherein Peggy Meets the Matinee Idol and Comes Away a Wiser Girl.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

When Peggy learned that she was to be ushered into the royal and resplendent presence of Everard De Ormand, her rapture outlasted all verbal expression. To her it was inconceivable that a greater joy could ever befall her. She floated among the soft-scented clouds of transcendent bliss and she hoped that she'd never come down. However, she did come down, and with something of a resounding thud, a proceeding not infrequent in this world of storage eggs and unpaid bills.

It might be thought that Aunt Betty was guilty of a little betrayal in this. And in truth it must be said that she felt a twinge or two in bringing her darling niece back to earth.

But it was all for the best, thought Aunt Betty. Sooner or later all young girls must learn that—but perhaps it would come in better at the end of the chapter.

The arrangement is to meet Mr. De Ormand after the performance and as the two set forth Aunt Betty explains to Peggy that the handsome original of the autographed and high-ly idealized portrait was her school-mate in high school days of yore.

It does not occur to Peggy to compute the exact date of "yore," where by she might gain an insight of her doll's age—and perhaps 'tis just as well that it doesn't. That father must have known Everard some-where in his tender youth has escaped Peggy too. And father never offered the information, being quite ignorant of his daughter's most recent aberration.

Reaching the stage door they are about to enter, Peggy atrill with a mingled array of delicious emotions, when there steps forth the figure of an amiable and kindly-visaged man in a brown suit and a cigar. The only hint of romance in his whole attire is the flower in his button-hole. Aunt Betty halts him with effusion.

"Harry Armond?"

"Betty Gray, you haven't grown a bit!"

And Peggy, as the bitter truth assails her, steps back in horror, grief, astonishment, dismay.

Don't go yet, Peggy; there's more to come.

Evelyn Dainty, the leading lady, a vision of delight upon the boards, is shortly introduced, as Harry's wife. The rest of the company, appearing one by one, completes the disillusionment, if it required completion. Pleasant and friendly as they are, it is torture to Peggy to see the none of them measures up to the lovely images she had made. One perhaps, the character lady, approaches Peggy's notion of what she should be.

But Everard De Ormand—and Peggy walking home with a bruised heart, reflects upon life's grievous disenchantments.

(To be continued)

The Difference Is "DRUCO" Heals

Take cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, &c. Half a dozen preparations you've used would antiseptically cleanse the wound! They do that, and—they stop right there! "DRUCO" does everything they do, in the way of antiseptic washing of the wound—but it goes further, and HEALS COMPLETELY, commencing with the application of the first drop! "Just pour it on!" Simple, isn't it? That's all YOU have to do—leave the rest to "DRUCO!"

ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE. DRUCO DRUG CO

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Never Fear, Mother Knew What She Was About.

BY F. LEIPZIGER

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—MRS. THOMSON, 549 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Universal Cost. After all, the most complaint of individuals is the taxpayer. He will rear like a lion at an increase of a fraction of a cent in the tax rate, yet fawn like a kicked cur before a legislature that shovels his good money into the sea. So the legislature should worry.—Baltimore American.

TUBERCULOSIS

In addition to plenty of fresh air and proper diet, those suffering from or who are predisposed to Tuberculosis are recommended to use Eckman's Alternative to stop night sweats, banish fever, and hasten recovery. This medicine, by reason of its successful use during the past, warrants the fullest investigation possible by every sufferer. Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections, and in up-building the system. It contains no narcotics, nor harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by leading druggists. Write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries.

French Remedy Aids Stomach Sufferers

France has been called the nation without stomach troubles. The French have for generations used a simple mixture of vegetable oils that relieves all stomach and intestinal ailments and keep the bowels free from fruit, poisonous matter. The stomach is left to perform its functions normally. Mr. Geo. H. Mayr, a leading druggist of Chicago, cured himself with this remedy in a short time. The demand is so great that he imports these oils from France and compounds them under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. People everywhere write and testify to the marvelous relief they have received using this remedy—one dose will rid the body of poisonous accretions that have accumulated for years and convince the most chronic sufferers from stomach, liver or intestinal troubles. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by all druggists.

ALONE IN THE WILDERNESS

By JOSEPH KNOWLES

Copyright, 1913, by Small, Maynard & Co.

I made my moccasins by first wetting the rawhide and putting my foot on it to get the length. I used two pieces for each moccasin, turning the bottom piece up a little and stitching it to the top piece while it was on my foot. This raised the stitching above the ground where it would not wear out. When the wet rawhide dried they were a perfect fit.

Whenever I wore the bearskin I slung it over my shoulder and held it together in front with thongs.

There was nothing wonderful about killing that deer. Many people have seemed to marvel about that incident, and some, not understanding the woods, have openly doubted the story. To any one who knows the ways and habits of animals such a thing would not seem wonderful. Those who have hunted and lived among the wilds do not think so for a minute. It is really of such little importance that a man who understands such things would not even mention it. In fact not until I had been out of the forest for nearly a week did I speak of the affair at all, and then only when I was asked to explain where I got my deer.

A Hut Erected in the Forest by the Author.

Skepticism is based largely on ignorance. When a man hears something that he does not know about he is either broad minded enough to learn more about it, or else announces that he does not believe it at all.

A man of the woods might ask you something like this: "Did you have a gun?"

"No."

"Well, that's pretty good. You were lucky to get your deer that way." He wouldn't ask any more questions because he would understand. He wouldn't ask you how the deer acted, because he would know how it acted. Nor would he ask how much strength was used, knowing how much strength was necessary to kill a deer in that manner. He would also know that if you saw a deer too big to handle you would not tackle it.

In winter when the snow is deep the deer or moose has difficulty in getting about. They find together, walking about in furrows worn by themselves. A man on snow shoes can run them down very quickly.

There are many different ways to kill a deer. In the yard you can kill him with a club. You can throw him and break his neck, just as the cowboys in the west throw a steer and break its neck. Then, again, you can strangle the animal by throwing your whole weight against him.

Talking with Andrew Sockalexis, the Indian Marathon runner, after my return to civilization, brought to light another experience similar to mine. This Indian had run down a deer on snowshoes in the winter and killed the animal with his hands alone.

I feel pity instead of anger toward those critics who do not believe simply because they do not know.

The deer fights with its forward feet more than it does with its horns. In winter a deer does not have horns to fight with. Summer is the mating season, and I suppose nature provided them with antlers at this time to protect themselves. In the mating season the horns of these animals are perfect, and they are always ready for a fight. They will resist any interference from other animals. But in winter they yard together and are peaceful, never engaging in battle, for at this time they shed their horns and are harmless. I have obtained some remarkable photographs of these animals in the yards in winter under the jacklight.

Jacklight photography is real sport, and when it is all over the animal is not harmed in the slightest degree.

In jacklighting first of all it is necessary to have a dark night. Then you need a canoe and a jacklight on a staff in the bow. Next a man who understands paddling is absolutely essential—one who when he dips his paddle in the water will do it so quietly you cannot even hear a ripple. All guides know how to do this.

Set your camera with the shutter open on a box above the light. Then you go paddling noiselessly down the stream with a broad cycle of light sweeping the shore.

Unless a beaver swimming along makes a dive and in plunging makes a noise with his tail as he goes down there is absolutely nothing to break the silence. That noise does not scare the other animals because they know what it stands for.

If the animals on the shore do not get your scent you can go very close to them with the canoe.

The first thing you see is two balls of fire in the circle of light on the bank. As you come nearer the form of an animal will take shape around those balls of fire. It may be a deer, a moose, a caribou, a bear, or it may be a crane—in fact, any animal or bird in the woods.

When you feel that you are close enough pull the flashlight and you have your picture.

Under the spell of the jacklight the animal stands fascinated, and it is a most cowardly thing to kill one under such conditions. There is a law against doing this, one of the few good game laws.

With the moose, especially the cow moose, it is different. The jacklight enrages the animal, and she bristles up and always prepares to fight it. She will set herself and wait until the canoe gets within about ten feet of her, when she will charge at it.

CHAPTER XI. A Test of Courage.

I THINK sometimes when a man suffers his mind is apt to go back over his life and linger on some terrible hardship he has experienced, and that by making a comparison between the present suffering and that of the past he finds some consolation. It is no uncommon thing to hear a man or woman say, "If I could go through that I surely can stand this present trouble."

A similar comparison confronted me in the forest when mental torture threatened to drive me back to civilization before my time was up. It was about an experience I had undergone many years before in the northern Maine country, and the remembrance of it on those lonesome times made me realize that my lot at present was far less hard in comparison.

I, too, said to myself, "If I could endure that night I can surely win this battle with my mind." The recollection of that adventure in the canyon eighteen years before aided me greatly in this respect.

At that time I was in northern Maine. One morning I was called upon to prepare for a sixty mile ride, being told at the same time that a young woman was to be entrusted to my care. It was the latter part of January, and from six to ten feet of snow covered the ground. That very morning it was snowing, but it was a light snow, and the air was unusually warm for that time of the year.

After we had ridden for about twenty miles the snow turned to rain, and the horse began to slump badly. Presently we entered a canyon where a ledge overhung the path. To the left was a river, which, because of the light snow, had overflowed its bank and undermined the deep snow.

I stopped the horse in order to let him rest a moment. We started forward again, and just as we came to the lowest part, close to the river, the horse broke through the surface of the snow into the water, dragging the sleigh with us in it after him.

The water was up to our waists, and it was bitter cold. It was a wild sort of country. Just above our heads, hanging from the ledge, were tons of icicles, measuring anywhere from 75 to 100 feet long. It is easy to imagine what would have happened to us if they had chanced to fall.

What do you think Grace? Your ma is actually helping her to unpack after she promised not to do a thing.

That's awful.

Oh, bless, I'll help you unpack your trunks and put away your things!

Oh, Aunt Ann, that would be great, but I don't want you to put yourself out in any way for me!

Remember now, we won't do a thing for them, none of us!

They certainly had the nerve to come here, and spoil our vacation plans. But they won't get much comfort here if I can help it. I won't do a thing for them.

SH! WAIT A MINUTE! SIT DOWN AND I'LL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT IT!

TRAITOR! BACKSLIDER!

Did she have any silk stockings?

I suppose she had tank pumps. They always have money for that!

Honestly, girls, she hasn't a thing to wear! Most the things are made over and it looks like some woodchopper did it. Some of it must have been handed down as heir-looms from her great-grandmother. If she had any lingerie worth while it must be hidden in a tooth-powder can.

Sample of Knowles' Writing With Burnt Sticks on Birch Bark.

same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and I were equal to it.

First I went back to the girl and beat her some more. Pulling her out into the snow, I took my robe away from her and left her half dead.

Using this robe as a footing, I made ready for the final struggle with the horse. I knew it was the last, because I realized the animal wouldn't last through another one. Neither would I.

The struggle began with a thrashing of hoofs and a lashing about. Suddenly the horse gave a mighty plunge, and his forward feet struck the solid ground. He stood there trembling. The horse was entirely free now.

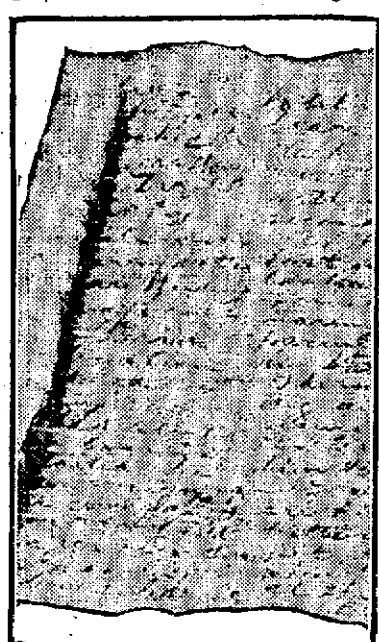

When I got my breath I went fearfully to the side of the girl.

"I'm all right," she said faintly. "Don't wait for me. Go along. Leave me here. I'm not suffering any more."

I dropped her back and went after the horse.

First I would rub the limbs of the girl, and then I would start doing the same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Sample of Knowles' Writing With Burnt Sticks on Birch Bark.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and I were equal to it.

First I went back to the girl and beat her some more. Pulling her out into the snow, I took my robe away from her and left her half dead.

Using this robe as a footing, I made ready for the final struggle with the horse. I knew it was the last, because I realized the animal wouldn't last through another one. Neither would I.

The struggle began with a thrashing of hoofs and a lashing about. Suddenly the horse gave a mighty plunge, and his forward feet struck the solid ground. He stood there trembling. The horse was entirely free now.

When I got my breath I went fearfully to the side of the girl.

"I'm all right," she said faintly. "Don't wait for me. Go along. Leave me here. I'm not suffering any more."

I dropped her back and went after the horse.

First I would rub the limbs of the girl, and then I would start doing the same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and I were equal to it.

First I went back to the girl and beat her some more. Pulling her out into the snow, I took my robe away from her and left her half dead.

Using this robe as a footing, I made ready for the final struggle with the horse. I knew it was the last, because I realized the animal wouldn't last through another one. Neither would I.

The struggle began with a thrashing of hoofs and a lashing about. Suddenly the horse gave a mighty plunge, and his forward feet struck the solid ground. He stood there trembling. The horse was entirely free now.

When I got my breath I went fearfully to the side of the girl.

"I'm all right," she said faintly. "Don't wait for me. Go along. Leave me here. I'm not suffering any more."

I dropped her back and went after the horse.

First I would rub the limbs of the girl, and then I would start doing the same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and I were equal to it.

First I went back to the girl and beat her some more. Pulling her out into the snow, I took my robe away from her and left her half dead.

Using this robe as a footing, I made ready for the final struggle with the horse. I knew it was the last, because I realized the animal wouldn't last through another one. Neither would I.

The struggle began with a thrashing of hoofs and a lashing about. Suddenly the horse gave a mighty plunge, and his forward feet struck the solid ground. He stood there trembling. The horse was entirely free now.

When I got my breath I went fearfully to the side of the girl.

"I'm all right," she said faintly. "Don't wait for me. Go along. Leave me here. I'm not suffering any more."

I dropped her back and went after the horse.

First I would rub the limbs of the girl, and then I would start doing the same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and I were equal to it.

First I went back to the girl and beat her some more. Pulling her out into the snow, I took my robe away from her and left her half dead.

Using this robe as a footing, I made ready for the final struggle with the horse. I knew it was the last, because I realized the animal wouldn't last through another one. Neither would I.

The struggle began with a thrashing of hoofs and a lashing about. Suddenly the horse gave a mighty plunge, and his forward feet struck the solid ground. He stood there trembling. The horse was entirely free now.

When I got my breath I went fearfully to the side of the girl.

"I'm all right," she said faintly. "Don't wait for me. Go along. Leave me here. I'm not suffering any more."

I dropped her back and went after the horse.

First I would rub the limbs of the girl, and then I would start doing the same thing to the horse until I couldn't rub any more.

Finally I made an attempt to throw the girl across the horse's back, but to save my life I couldn't lift her up.

After trying half a dozen times I managed to sling her across, and for an instant I thought the animal was going to cave in under her.

I steered him by the rough places, for I knew if he slumped it would be all off. For about a mile our sorry trio continued until we reached a point where a narrow gauge logging railroad crossed the footpath. I knew that it would be easier going between the rails of this track, so I led the creature on to the track, taking care that he did not stumble and fall.

"Nothing I have ever attempted has come out right," I cried. "I have been up against it and have had to struggle all my life. This is my last struggle, and I don't care."

"I'll stay with the horse," I continued to myself. "What is the difference?"

Continually slipping and crashing down, the horse struggled forward. When he fell I would pull him up again. Then I would hear the girl cry again.

Once when I reached her side and spoke to her she did not answer. I lifted her up, but she fell back flat. Then I beat her as if I were mad and dragged her about, tearing her clothes. Then she moaned and screamed, and I knew that she was still alive.

This exercise with the girl didn't rest me any, and before I made another journey to the horse I was forced to get my breath.

Again I was forced to break away the ice. The horse's legs were numb, and I had to beat him to keep him struggling.

I was suffering excruciating pain, and I know it made a different man of me. With a superhuman effort the horse got within ten feet of sure footing. I knew that everything hung on the next struggle, and I wondered if the animal and

